Symmetries of a graph are measured by automorphisms of the graph, and regular covering of a graph was systematically investigated by Gross and Tucker in [Topological Graph Theory, John wiley and sons, 1987]. In this report, we talk about automorphisms of regular covers of a graph and their application to classification of arc-transitive graphs. (Received September 12, 2013)