This presentation describes how mathematical modeling and computer software can be used to solve key problems in figure skating to inform athletes, coaches, and policy makers, including: 1) Based on past competitors’ scores, what jumps were needed at certain levels for athletes to qualify for Nationals? 2) Based on previous competition entries, what geographic boundaries should be set for future collegiate competitions? (Received July 17, 2019)