In this joint work we illustrate how one can (sometimes) use numerical methods to achieve a partial decomposition of a radical ideal. The main numerical tools are homotopy continuation methods combined with lattice basis reduction. The method is implemented via a Maple interface to the Bertini software package for numerical algebraic geometry. (Received September 15, 2008)