A simple mathematical model is used to model the dynamics of drinking in homogeneous mixing communities. The role of relapse, social and the identification of optimal approaches to reduce drinking are explored. (Received September 16, 2008)