Most often instructors feel a disconnect with their online audience. The communication in the classroom has not been easily transferred in the virtual world when implementing online assessments. I will demonstrate techniques to improve the communication of the mathematical understanding through online assessments. (Received September 11, 2009)