Chicago, IL 60605. Using the campus to connect accessibility to precalculus. Preliminary report.

Roosevelt University is located in two connected buildings: the historic Auditorium Theater building and the very modern Wabash building. These facilities lead to some interesting accessibility issues where floors aren't aligned with one another. In our precalculus class students work in groups to connect solving right triangles, measurements and errors, and the Americans with Disabilities Act in a class project. (Received September 25, 2018)
