A characterization of a continuous nonnegative function \( f \) that is radially symmetric is obtained. The motivation of the problem arises from an elementary consideration of solids of revolution with the Herschel-Maxwell Theorem for the multivariate normal distribution the consequence. (Received August 30, 2020)